

Capturing Growth without the Mega Cap Tech Concentration

- In recent years, the S&P 500 Growth Index has disproportionately benefitted from its ~56% exposure* to The Magnificent 7 (Apple, Microsoft, Alphabet, Amazon, Nvidia, Tesla and Meta).
- Couple that with a ~31% exposure* to The Magnificent 7 in a core S&P 500 allocation, and investors are extremely levered to the performance of these seven companies (Google and Alphabet trade inline) that are increasingly subject to intense global regulatory headwinds from an anti-trust, privacy and ethical perspective.
- When examining the growth allocation of a client portfolio, the SS&C ALPS Advisors Thematic ETF Supersleeve, consisting of the ALPS Disruptive Technologies ETF (DTEC), the ALPS Clean Energy ETF (ACES) and the ALPS Medical Breakthroughs ETF (SBIO), captures true secular growth through disruptive innovation with only a 2.23% exposure* to The Magnificent 7.

Methodology: SS&C ALPS Advisors Thematic ETF Supersleeve

ALPS Clean Energy ETF (ACES)

Exposure to US and Canadian-based pure-play companies that derive a majority of their value from a clean energy business or clean technologies within seven clean energy segments.

ALPS Disruptive Technologies ETF (DTEC)

Exposure to ten different disruptive technology themes with ten global, pure-play companies within each theme for true disruptive diversification.

ALPS Medical Breakthroughs ETF (SBIO)

Exposure to quality-screened US small and mid-cap biotechnology companies that are at the forefront of drug development and innovation and are well capitalized.

A balanced blend of ACES, DTEC and SBIO can provide broad exposure to pure-play growth companies within innovative areas of the global economy where disruption is occurring at a rapid pace.

The Funds employ a "passive management" - or indexing - investment approach and seek investment results that correspond (before fees and expenses) generally to the performance of their underlying index. Unlike many investment companies, the Funds are not "actively" managed. Therefore, they would not necessarily sell or buy a security unless that security is removed from or added to their underlying index, respectively.

CIBC Atlas Clean Energy Index: an adjusted market cap weighted index designed to provide exposure to a diverse set of US or Canadian based companies involved in the clean energy sector including renewables and clean technology. The clean energy sector is comprised of companies that provide the products and services which enable the evolution of a more sustainable energy sector.
